I Shot a Man in Reno Caleb S. Cage

Johnny Cash's most famous and recognizable line, perhaps only after his personal stage introduction, is "I shot a man in Reno Just to watch him die." It is the line that everyone knows. It is the line that gets the wildest response at his shows. It is the line that, in 1956, separated Johnny Cash from his cohort of rockabilly innovators, and contributed to him becoming one of the most famous voices of the latter half of the American Century. This book examines the history and the legacy of the line to Cash and his alt country successors.
