In Times Like These: Forty Riveting Interpretations Wayne Barnes

We live in very exciting and dangerous times. Using lyrical and witty satirical verses the author captures the essence of our time using the more intriguing people, sizzling issues and noteworthy events in recent memory, some are set on a global scale. This includes sports superstars, movers and shakers of society, issues like crime, saving the earth and etiquette, the World Cup and National Elections events. Identities are sometimes disguised so you will need to figure out who is “The Art of the Dealer”, “Don on the Run” or “A Dancing Dragon”? Forty creative pieces in all for you to peruse and enjoy, to provoke thought yet bringing lightheartedness to cope without trying to escape....in times like these. Excerpts:

The Art of the Dealer

He blows his own loud trumpet
He is more popular than Donald Duck
He is rich! The most famous billionaire on earth
Having many towering achievements and accolades
His name is all over the planet way up in lights
He is in the game with a full hand from the deck
He is no illusionist but what will the cards reveal?
He has fired up the race some say creating a circus
Others say his entry into the race is for the better
He's bold, full of bluster, but will he blunder?
He is the real deal even from the crown of his head
He is not in the game for money nor just to entertain
He wants America to be a great nation again
The Don is used to having his way at the top
But running independently could trump the party.

Privacy Rights: Public Controversy

Nowadays we have sophisticated locks and bolts
Yet we have no privacy because of sneaky folks,
They want to get information that is of little use
They claim it is for our good which make us confused.....

Election: The Silly Season

The election season is the time
When sane people say silly things
And sillier people believe
The prudent will remain silent
The crafty will bet on both sides.....

Crime: Violence in the Streets

They are murdering people in the streets
Blood is flowing in the gutter like a stream,
Even shooting children on the playgrounds
People wonder where peace can be found.....
