What-If Tales: Book One L. Bruce Knudson, R. Matt Knudson

An anthology of stories regarding: 1) What if the native populations of North and South America had been able to fight off foreign explorers and invaders? How might that have occurred? What would the history of the rest of the world have been like from 1200 A.D to the present day? 2) What if a trillionaire had teamed up with an eminent molecular biologist to create a genetically engineered army with which to wipe out the entire population of the earth leaving the whole world to them? How could they be stopped if their plan was succeeding? 3) What if the region of the US where 85% of their food supply is grown was to be wiped out by a drought? What if some nefarious entities had realized that this was to happen and had plans to take over the US after rioting and death had swept the country? How could this be prevented or stopped once it was underway? 4) What if a group of senior citizens in rest homes were the only ones who could prevent the release of radioactivity from dozens of nuclear power plants by terrorists which would irradiate the US food supply and wipe out the east coast?
